Brief curriculum vitae

Vasiliki Eleftheriou is an Architect-Engineer and holds an MSc in the Protection of Monuments from the School of Architecture of the National Technical University of Athens. She works at the Greek Ministry of Culture and Sports. From 1988 to 2005 she was in charge of the restoration works of the Lindos Acropolis and from 2006 to 2011 she has been working at the Acropolis Restoration Service in Athens on the restoration project of the Parthenon. Since December 2011 she has been the Director of the Acropolis Restoration Service.

She has participated in conferences and has contributed several papers on the subject of cultural heritage protection and management. She has also lectured at seminars in universities in Greece (National Technical University of Athens, University of Athens, Technical University of Crete) and abroad (Columbia University, Yale University, UPenn, Boston University, University of Delaware, Stony Brook University). She has collaborated with the Greek Archaeological Service and research institutions, including the 22th Ephorate of Prehistoric and Classical Antiquities, the 4th Ephorate of Byzantine Antiquities, the Archaeological Institute of Aegean Studies, the University of Ioannina, the Aristotle University of Thessaloniki and the Free University of Berlin.

She participates in the Committee for the Conservation and restoration of the Monuments of the Acropolis at Lindos, the Committee for the Restoration of the Ancient Theatre of Lindos and the scientific committee of the Journal of Archaeology and Ancient Architecture "Thiasos", published by the University of Rome "La Sapienza" and the Faculty of Architecture of the Polytechnic School of Bari. She is also a member of the Centre of Literature and the Arts of the Dodecanese, the Panhellenic Union of Architects and the Technical Chamber of Greece.
